1. The meeting opened at 1400 hours, with briefings by [REDACTED] the 1964 recipients of National Institute of Public Affairs (NIPA) Career Education Awards. Both individuals agreed that the year spent at Harvard and Princeton were highlights of their careers in the Agency and strongly recommended that the Agency continue to send employees to the program. When asked for specific recommendations to help the Board select future NIPA Fellows, Messrs. [REDACTED] and [REDACTED] suggested that future selectees have a) prior graduate work, b) some working knowledge of inter-agency problems, and c) experience in management. They should also be overt employees so they can represent the Agency in both formal discussions and social situations, and should be at least at the grade GS-12 level to avoid financial difficulty during the year. [REDACTED] reported that he had no administrative problems regarding leave, pay, travel, etc., and experienced no difficulties in locating good schools for his children at Princeton. [REDACTED] on the other hand, reported a slight mix up in submission of leave slips, but otherwise, everything went smoothly from an administrative standpoint. He noted that the public schooling in Cambridge, Massachusetts seemed to be inferior to the public schools in Fairfax, Virginia and recommended that future NIPA selectees attending Harvard consider the possibility of sending their children to the local parochial school.

2. The Minutes of the Seventh Meeting were approved with the following comments:

a. Re 3c. of the Minutes of the Seventh Meeting: The Chairman informed the Board that management training is no longer a prerequisite for attendance in the Midcareer Executive Development Course. It is recommended that a management course be taken before attending the MEDC, but such a course is not mandatory.

b. [REDACTED] suggested that the Board consider making exceptions, where warranted, to allow individuals who have had less than three years in the Agency to attend the MEDC. The Chairman agreed, but stated that a good case would have to be made for the exception.

b. The Executive Secretary reported that changes have recently been made in the curriculum of the Fort Belvoir Army Management Course -- the emphasis is now on managing an Army installation. The program has been revised, the grade level lowered, and the title changed to "The Army Installation Management Course."

c. Kings Point Seminars. The Chairman said that suddenly the Kings Point Seminars had become very popular. He mentioned that when the Kings Point program was first started the Agency had been one of its strong supporters. We now have more requests for training from Agency training offices than Kings Point will accommodate. We asked for 14 spaces but Kings Point gave us only ten.
